

PLEBISCITE WILL COST $1,000,000

New Voters' List To Be Made & Stated By Minister

A complete new voters' list will be prepared for the plebiscite, in which the government needs release from its commitments against conscription, Secretary of State Maclellan announced last Friday in the House of Commons.

But this lists will neither be revised or printed, and those names are inadvertently dropped may vote after taking the oath and being included by a voter in the same district, he said.

Mr. Maclellan, however, the resolution upon which the plebiscite will be based, said the cost, if all workers must be paid, will be approximately $1,000,000.

Constitutional objections and those who convictions prevent them from entering the armed forces must vote in the plebiscite, but by voting they would not be eligible for exemption from conscription.

All members of the Canadian forces, regardless of age, will be permitted to vote in the plebiscite. Residents of Canada whose racial origins are of countries at war with Canada, and who are not permitted to vote in provincial elections, are not served in Canadian forces will be disqualified. This would exclude Canadian citizens of Japanese origin.

Interested persons will not be permitted to vote.

For the civilian vote otherwise, the general qualifications laid down in the Election Act will prevail, and those disqualified under the Election Act will be disqualified for the plebiscite vote.

The form of question and the list will not be incorporated in the bill, although the question would be that already communicated to parliament by the Prime Minister.

Because of the great shifts in population since the last general election—due to construction of war workers in certain areas, military movements, and the fact that an estimated 400,000 have attained voting age since then—the old lists could not be used, Mr. Maclellan said.

To use old lists but have voters take an oath, would be unseemly to the voter and would result in a great deal of delay, he said, and double the number of political workers, while adding weight to the costs to cover preparation of new lists.

Special penalties will be provided in the bill for any illegal conduct for voters whose names are left off the list.

It was estimated $200,000 would be saved by using open voters' lists instead of the closed list, and a saving of one week in the time necessary to take the vote.

Ottawa Cuts Estimates

Non-War Spending Expected to Total $455,884,000—1943

Estimates amounting to $455,884,000, covering all government costs except war expenditures for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1943, were tabled in the House of Commons last week by Finance Minister Ivers.

This compared with $483,181,000 provided in the main non-war estimates for the current fiscal year, which ended March 31 next, but supplementary estimates for the current year bring the total to $509,569,000.

Mining from the list of major departmental requirements was the Canadian National Railway deficit, which will present fiscal year usually required the appropriation of several millions.

Estimates for the current year, however, contained substantial sums for payments to the provinces in lieu of income and corporation taxes, and what were savings, items not covered in the estimates tabled.

War costs will be provided for separately in a war appropriation bill, which is expected to call for approximately $1,000,000,000, and the proposed gift of $1,000,000,000 of Great Britain will be provided for either in a separate bill or added to the war appropriation measure.

Heavy Decreases

Estimates tabled last week showed substantial increases under several headings, interest on the public debt and other debt charges calling for an increase of $17,414,000.

But there were also heavy decreases in several departments, notably in the agriculture department where the 1942-43 appropriation of $18,608,000 to $20,000,000 less than for 1941-42.

However this agriculture estimate for the next fiscal year, $18,608,000, is actually an increase over the main estimate under the same heading for the current year, which was $18,184,000 but was increased by supplementary estimates of $55,000,000 to cover cost of the wheat storage refueling house.

Although Finance department costs are increased by $17,414,000 in debt charges the total estimate for next year, $226,564,000 is a decrease of $27,087,000 from the total appropriations in that department for the current year.

The decrease is accounted for mainly by the provision of an extra $45,000,000 in the current year's supplementary estimates for compensation to the provinces in lieu of income and corporation taxes.

Agreements with the provinces on their surrender of the income tax field have not been completed and so further items appear in the main estimate for next year for additional amounts that may be needed.

History Repeats Itself

The escape of the German battle ships through the Straits of Dover, and thus under the very noses of the British, which occurred recently, is a verification of the old saying that "history repeats itself."

On January 18, 1885, the British being then at war with the Dutch, Samuel Popp, Clerk of the Acts to the Navy, recorded in his diary:

"Spoke with a Frenchman, who was taken, but released, by a Dutch man-of-war of thirty-six guns, with seven crew of the King's, or greater ship, off the North Foreland, by Margat, which is a strange attempt, that they should come to our help; but the wind, being easterly, the wind that should bring our force from Portsmouth, will carry them away hence."

The "Margat" here mentioned, now known as Margate, lies with its shore town, Margate, a short distance north of Dover, at the entrance to the Straits from the north. The Dutchman, attacked from the north, but the Germans last week took a far greater chance, coming from the south they steamed right through the Straits, which at Dover are but 21 miles in width.

TRUCK LISPAL TO LOCAL BUSINESS MEN

On Tuesday afternoon of last week at about 3 p.m., a truck containing stock and driven by E. L. Long left the highway and rolled over into the ditch at a point three and a half miles west of the Carbon creek.

A broken spring on the front end loosened the wheels and the truck went completely out of control, and after turning over landed fully on its wheels again, the front end of the truck being badly smashed. The stock, which were being consigned to Calgary, included one horse, two head of cattle, and 12 hogs, all of which were thrown from the truck and walked on down the road, with the exception of one pig which had no broken.

Fortunately, beyond a bruise on the forehead, Mr. Long suffered no injury, but Roy Cook, who was riding in the truck, sustained two or three broken ribs. The stock were rounded up, and a phone call to Stan Laram, who arrived with his truck, had them safely loaded again later in the afternoon.

In January, Alberta produced 176,000 hogs by grading.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By M. G. L. STANLEY

Director, Research Dept., Saskatchewan Cdn. Ltd.

All farmers are waiting anxiously to learn the decision of Government as to whether or not to increase prices for wheat, and about the quantity of wheat the farmers may deliver from the forthcoming crop at that increased price. Some of the facts about a tremendous surplus of wheat that could not be stored or sold, which were expressed by many persons a year ago, fortunately have not materialized. These facts were first that there would be insufficient storage space to hold the grain from the 1941 crop—that is why the delivery quota placed on farmers was set at a somewhat low figure—then that only a comparatively small amount of wheat could be sold overseas and only at a substantially low price. Today there is a great deal more storage space available for this coming crop than anyone thought possible, and Canada that persons year will export much more wheat than was considered could be done, and now the open market price is increasing.

The Government, therefore, is false to our farmers should the year pay a considerably higher price for wheat, and in addition can accept much more wheat than it did last year without providing available storage space.

Show Increase

The gross revenue for the all-Canada Canadian National Railway System for the week ending February 19th, was $9,111,000 as compared with $4,984,000 for the corresponding period of 1941, an increase of $4,127,000.

"INTO THE STORM"

The crisis deepens. On almost every front the free world faces grave reverses, which must be averted by the war.

In 1942 we move "into the storm." Months, perhaps years, will pass before our resources fully girt for war—we shall pass "through the storm." We must take these bitter years "steadfastly together."

It is time that Canada moved forward to greater effort which has yet even been envisaged. It is time to still our factories, fight and (much more urgently guided by the principle of "equality of sacrifice") in the "quest to great total war."

Among the United Nations, the people of China have been engaged in total war these five years. Their sacrifices for cause which is ours as well as their own are immeasurable.

The British since Dunkirk have set all of us a shining example, and have lived in the spirit of sacrifice.

Australia, now in peril, is feverishly mobilizing every resource in materials and men.

Conservation of wealth, there is no New Zealand, is to be made real.

Canada has done well. Our industrial transformation has earned the praise of our neighbors.

But we have seemed reckless in our expansion, and now to total effort because our spirit has been in some degree aloof.

War for us was a distant tragedy. We, like our neighbors who were not at war, continued to make money, to accumulate capital, to increase production, to increase consumption, to increase wealth.

Our criticism would be more to the point, and certainly likely to be turned inward, if we were turned inward.

Remembering that "His knows that we have the solution for Canada's financial difficulties, and anything that might lead to a monetary reform movement or the socialization-of-credit movement is to his advantage."

He added that if monetary reform continued to be opposed, "then the thing he (Hitler) fears most, a democratic change in our economic system will be a dead issue."

Generally speaking, the majority of people would have assumed that Hitler had his eye full of the situation in our country, and that consequently there would have been little room left for a quiet at monetary reform in Edmonton, Alberta.
